Forklift Safety Training

A Well Trained Operator Requires Proper Training & Forklifts to Be In Safe Operating Condition

Infiniti Handling Systems recognizes the importance of safety training for forklift operators. By OSHA regulation, each business that utilizes forklifts MUST have authorized, trained personnel operating the machines, only. Failure to have each driver certified will cause hefty fines and major hassle. Save your business and yourself the problems endured by companies who do not conform to OSHA and have the drivers factory trained and certified before it's too late.

Forklift Safety Training not only extends to accidents, but also to maintenance of each and every forklift that the business operates. Training can help reduce accidents, liability to the company, injuries sustained by other employees, building damage & product damage due to a lack of knowledge regarding forklifts.

With proper training, each driver will have a high self confidence to his work duties and the company can rest easy knowing that their employees, their machines, and their product is safe from any danger and your company is free from violations.
